

Utah Oil Shale: A Path Towards Energy Independence

Greg Bell, Lieutenant Governor

State of Utah, United States

Lieutenant Governor Greg Bell will be discussing oil shale development in Utah. Oil shale has a long and storied history in our State, and the formations in Utah have the potential to be our nation's greatest untapped resource. Several research and other small-scale projects have been started and continue to be examined. Lieutenant Governor Bell will highlight oil shale's importance to Utah and discuss how its development fits into Governor Herbert's strategic energy plan.
